Tom Gordon Speaks about the Atlanta Beltline

The Rotary Club of Tucker welcomes Tom Gordon, a long-time advocate and board member of the Atlanta Beltline Project. The Atlanta Beltline has been developed “to improve the quality of life in the Atlanta area by adding parks and trails, improving mobility, and enhancing public arts, and creating workable communities. The overall goals are to revitalize neighborhoods, create a healthier city, drive economic growth and connect Atlanta’s people, places and communities.” This project was started to as the population in Atlanta began to boom. As a result challenges emerged: traffic congestions, insufficient parts, unbalanced economic development, barely affordable housing, unplanned growth and split communities. The Beltline project has become an answer to many of these challenges. The Beltline runs through 45 intown neighborhoods and has rapidly become a destination for residents across Metro Atlanta.
